Dear Armpit,
It was great having you in class this year. Thanks a lot for your wunderful acting job in my movie.
Bill

Jeff,
You're weird, but fortunately not as much as the other 6th hour lunch seniors, especially Hoffman. Good luck in college, Stockman

To the love of my life Jeff,
I'm going to miss your bright smile that enchants the whole cafeteria in the dreary mornings, but I'll think of you always.

To Jeff.
You're a really talented actor and filmaker! I've seen ya on stage many times and you've been on and "Going Fantastic" Glad back in California and I know you will succeed in every thing you do. All the best on your film and your talent, you're really nice and ya have a great personality.
Hope to see ya soon.

alias Mr. Potato Head

Hello sir, brussel sprouts, carrots, peas or green beans? Jeff would you like sour cream on your potatoes? Just joking! Well, Jeff it's too bad you're moving to San Diego. I mean it! I'll have to rush over with my first paycheck and buy a roast-beef-sandwich and every vegetable in the house. My aunt lives in San Diego and we might go out there to visit this summer or next. So I'll look you up, O.K? Good. You'll probably be living on a farm raising Roast Beef Sandwiches. Well I guess I'll say good-bye now because you'll be out of school in 2 days. I'm sorry I just got to know you this year!

Homecoming

An Apprensive and expectant A.H.S. Homecoming Court (Clockwise) Pages Denise Meacham and Rich Kuebler, Jodi Schroeder and Greg Kloiber, Kris Raino and Jeff Prior, Natalie Rizzo and Frank DeSimone, Jeanne Johnson and Tom North, Terry Vaughan and Jason Slezak.

Homecoming 1976: that time to remember for years to come. "Movie Madness" set the theme for the week's activities. Legs and bodies were judged in the Marilyn Monroe Legs Contest and in the Bionic Body Contest. On Spirit Day students were seen in the halls wearing hats, robes, ties, and mittens-yet on Color Day A.H.S.'s red and white prevailed. At last the day of Coronation arrived-the gym stood still while the King and Queen for 1976 were announced, followed by the parade. The Cardinal football team won the ever-important Homecoming football game against Wheeling. The week's Festivities were highlighted by the dance Saturday evening. Homecoming 1976-not to be forgotten.

Fantasies And Dreams

The 1976 theme for the Reader's Theatre performance was "Dreams and Fantasies." Selections acted out include "Alice through the Looking Glass," "Secret Life of Walter Mitty," "Metamorphasis I," "The Raven," and "Cinderella." This production was directed by Mrs. Helen Stavoros and involved seven students.

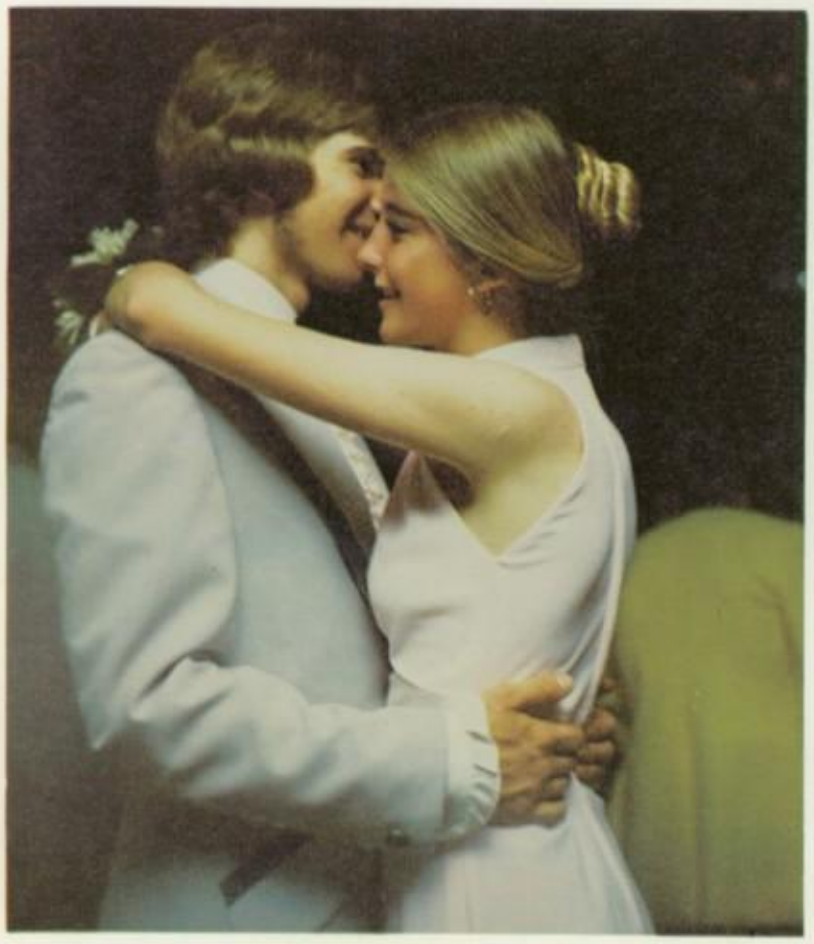
Prom '76: A Night Of Fond Moments



"Precious and Few" was the ideal theme for Arlington's 1976 Prom. The dinner and dance for the special evening were planned by the junior class of '77. The Prom took place May 21, 1976, at the picturesque Villa Olivia. Couples arrived at the Prom smiling with the anticipation of an enchanting evening full of laughter and romance. The delicious dinner was served and immediately after everyone had finished, the dancing began. Things started out slowly, but as the evening progressed, more and more of the couples joined in, until nearly everyone was dancing. As the group dreamed the night away, the air was filled with lively music from Jim Bestman and his band. The floor was filled with dynamic duos bumping and hustling to popular songs of the decade.

Jeff,
This year was the greatest because you were a part of it, all year. I'll never forget this year or you, I have a great life-in-art and remember us in art life. Best of luck in life and when you're a producer please call me for something
Take care

'76 Fall Play a Big Hit

The 1976 Fall Play opened on Thursday evening, October 28 to a full-house crowd. It was "My Sister Eileen." Every member of the cast put forth great effort to make this play the tremendous success that it was. The truly superb performing carried throughout the remaining two nights thrilling equally astonishing sized audiences. The quick paced play was not only exciting and interesting, but also held it's audience's attention firmly. To mention just a few of the actors: Sue Parlee, Beth Martin, Tim Walker, Mike Znacho, Jackie Adams and Tom Anderson, along with the numerous others did an excellent job in portraying their roles.

Jeff,
I loved working with you on the show "Dracula" — You really astonished me with your excellent acting job in such a difficult part. Best of luck to ya. Love, Bill Glader (Professor VanHelsing)

The Blood Is the Life!

On January 27, 28, and 29th, Arlington High School audiences were able to get their first taste of blood when that spine-tingling melodrama, "Count Dracula," was presented. The horrors and half-life of that famous fourteenth century vampire was brought to life in our own Bristol Theatre. While pictures talked, dogs howled, bookcases opened, and fog rolled in, Count Dracula made an attempt to get himself a bride. Poor Mina almost fell prey to the strangely hypnotizing inhabitant of a nearby castle!

(Above) "Do you think you can fight and hold-off Dracula, then prevent him from turning Mina into a Vampire?" screams Renfield. "No, you will never be able to keep him away! Never! NEVER!! (Lower right) Dr. VanHolsing (Bill Glader), Mina (Beth Martin), and Jonathan (Jeff Armstrong) listen to Sybil (Mel Gersch) as she explains how she bumped into Count Dracula in the cemetary. (Lower left) Count Dracula (Carl Maysack) wings his locket back and forth as Sybil watches, her eyes getting heavier and heavier. (Center left) Mina faints and mercilessly falls prey to the Count who sucks the blood from her throat and enjoys a delicious meal. (Left) Pausing a moment before he lunges for Mina's throat, the Count bares his fangs and thinks about his favorite drink . . . blood!

"Boys" Has Big Turnout!

"The Boys From Syracuse," last year's spring musical, was presented in the Grace Gym on May 13 and 14. The show was something a little different from what Arlington audiences were used to seeing. The show contained ladies of the evening, two sets of twins, sex-starved wives and alot of mix-ups and madcap comedy. At the beginning of rehearsals, the cast and their director, Miss Helen Stavros knew they had a hard six weeks of practicing, singing and dancing ahead of them. They practiced each scene over and over again until everything was just right. Then production week came and all the scenes and songs fell into place to produce an enjoyable and most successful musical.

Spring Play Is a Smash

Sheridan Whiteside—arriving at the home of the E. W. Stanleys'—falls on the front steps and confines himself to a wheelchair while taking over the Stanley residence as his own office. So begins last spring's play, "The Man Who Came To Dinner." The plot grows more complex as Mr. Whiteside schemes to dissuade his secretary, Maggie Cutler, from leaving him. He bribes Dr. Bradley into pronouncing his hip broken, then arranges for a famous actress to arrive from Broadway to capture the attention of the reporter Maggie loves. Ironically, when Mr. Whiteside decides to let Maggie go, he really fractures a hip!

The first annual Christmas Ball took place December 18th, 1976. The dance was highlighted with a few new additions. A dance held at christmas time was new in itself and a senior girl reigning as a Christmas Ball queen with attendant from each class, all selected by their respective classmates, was the start of a new tradition. The dance was well attended by couples from each class. It was sponsored by the senior class and alot of effort went into the decorations. A 20ft. tree with a canopy overhead was constructed, a bridge had to be crossed to enter the dance, snow tried to fall, and a castle stood in one corner. The music was presented by the "Sounds of Now!"

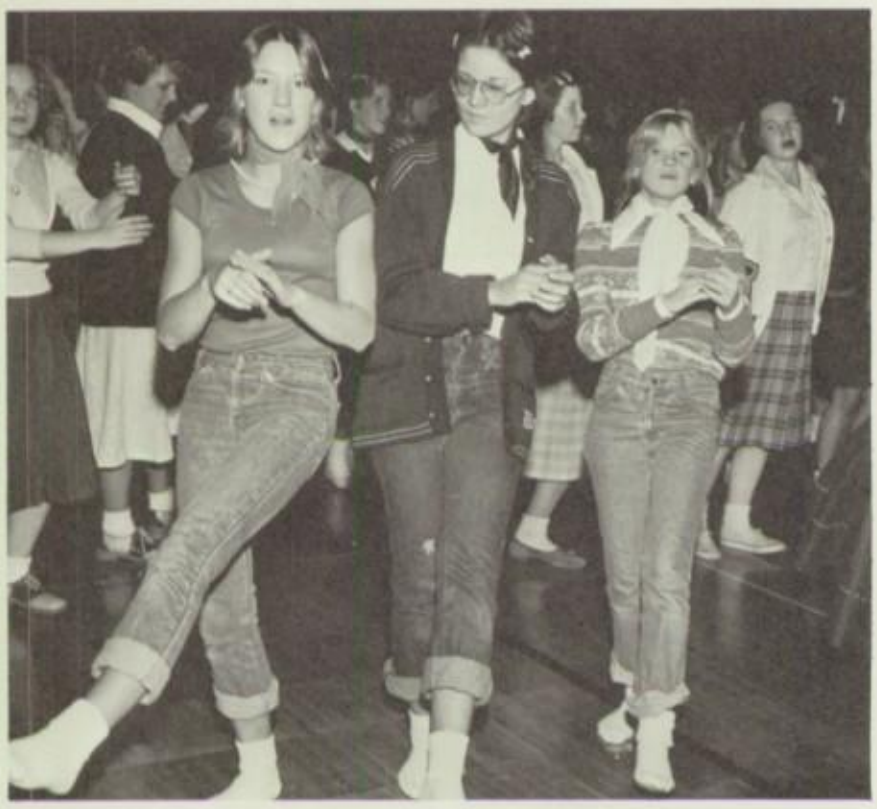
50's Day And Dance



Bobby socks and rolled-up blue jeans were the dress of the day—Fifties Day, that is. The day was filled with nostalgia as students competed for titles in the hula-hoop and bubblegum-blowing contests during their lunch hours. The sounds of Chubby Checkers and Elvis Presley filled the hall during passing periods. The event was topped-off by the crowning of Beth Ferrini and Jason Slezak as Motorcycle Mama and Leader of the Pack that evening.

(Below) Two identical members of the 50's rock group, "Jade", sing, swing, move, groove, and please the crowd at the 50's dance.

Tankers Are Tough!

A.H.S.'s swim team proves that hard work and long hours of practice pay off. The defending Mid-Suburban League champions are coached by Don Anderson, John Laue, and by diving coach Wayne Oras. Varsity co-captains Tony Hahn and Mike Roessler have led returning letterman, Jeff Brask, Peter Cormier, Mark Elinski, Steve Nitch, Scott McCratic, Steve Roessler, Jeff Thut, Bob Weidner, and sophomore standout Jimmy Burns into a winning season. Also, adding to the team efforts were the Timettes- who run the swim meets. Arlington has a swim team they can be proud of.

Arlington Cheerleaders Cheer Teams To Victory

(Bottom left) Debbie North does what AHS cheerleaders do best-yell, as she and Mary Titre entertain a basketball halftime crowd.

Neither rain nor snow nor stormy weather, can stop Arlington cheerleaders from getting together... and seeing to it that the stands are filled with enthusiasm and cheers for the Cardinal teams. Cheerleading is an honor and a responsibility for these girls.

The Arlington cheerleaders have learned to live with colds and sore throats from football games, and how to dodge out of the way of basketball players and still bring the Cardinals spirit with their cheers.

(Upper left) "Gee, this isn't as hard as I thought it would be," Maggie Pietsch thinks as she leads the crowd in the school song.

(Lower left) "Hail to Old Arlington!" Varsity Cheerleaders Janet Berge cheers out as she leads the huge crowd in the school song.

Arlington High School's Bands "Believe In Music"

Yes, Arlington High School does believe in music, in fact, all kinds. With German Band and Jazz Band in the same room it is hard to tell if you're in New Orleans or Germany! In the fall Marching Band is the big attraction at parades and football games. During the winter on Sundays you can hear Concert Band performing. In the spring Symphonic Band can be heard practicing up for the spring musical. Yes, Arlington's bands are active all thru the year!

Friends

A friend is a person of great understanding who shares all our hopes and our schemes . . .
A companion who listens with interest and patience to all of our plans and our dreams,
a true friend can make all our cares melt away with a touch of a hand or smile,
and with calm reassurance
make everything brighter, and life always seems more worthwhile . . .
A friend shares so many bright moments of laughter at even the tiniest thing—what memorable hours of lighthearted gladness and pleasure this sharing can bring!
A Friend is a cherished and precious possession who knows all our hopes and our fears,
and someone to treasure deep down in our hearts with a closeness that grows through the years!

Dear Jeff,
How great this year has been I didn't even know you. I remember how you used to eat lunch with Pat and how he though I was chasing him. But I love you from Marilyn and I really am thankful to marilyn because your a great Pal. I think I know your the only friend that I have that's close and is a boy. I remember when I lost my cross you tryed so hard to let me get over it and I did. I'm so happy that I have a friend like you I'm going to miss you very much. I want to write you. and I will do I hope you write back. I still say you act like dam I know If you met him you would have gotten along fine with him. your so funny I remember how one day all I did was crack up because you were so funny. I'm going to miss that smile that comes in each morning. Jeff I think your still the best acter in this school even though I am probably playing favorites. I wish you the best of luck in Calipaina Hope the earthquake don't come. God Bless

Love
Connie

Class Board officers (Above) Matt Arnoux, Linda Baker, Jeff Prior, and Ginger Johnson climb the pole to success beginning here at Arlington High School on a chilly November afternoon. Some of the Senior achievements were first place in float competition during the Homecoming festivities, defeating the Juniors in the 1976 Annual Powder-Puff Game, and sponsoring the beautiful Christmas Ball. Tops all around, the class of 77 has spent three long years of being "the underclassmen" and can now settle back and look ahead after graduation to singing, winging, dancing, romancing and life away from home.Exxxcellent!

Seniors

JEFF-
THAT IS A WONDERFUL PICTURE. YOU SHOULD BE VERY SUCCESSFUL IN FILM, ACTING, OR WHAT EVER. I'M GLAD TO SEE YOU GO, KIND OF. NOW I DON'T HAVE SUCH HARD COMPETITION IN THEATRE. YOU WERE A GREAT FRIEND. IF YOU GET LONELY. ASK FOR MOUNTAIN HAWTHORNE. LOVE YA!
YOU Hawthorne

After Four Years Comes the Big Finale

Freshmen

Freshmen class board officers (Above) Bob Shanley, Mike Amtmann, Mike Bruck and Katie Shauhessy led the class of 1980 through their first year at AHS. The freshmen faced harsh reality when they realized that the elevator passes they had were no good. Other activities that the frosh participated in and sponsored were the famous Turn-About Dance and a prize-winning float in the 1976 Homecoming Parade.

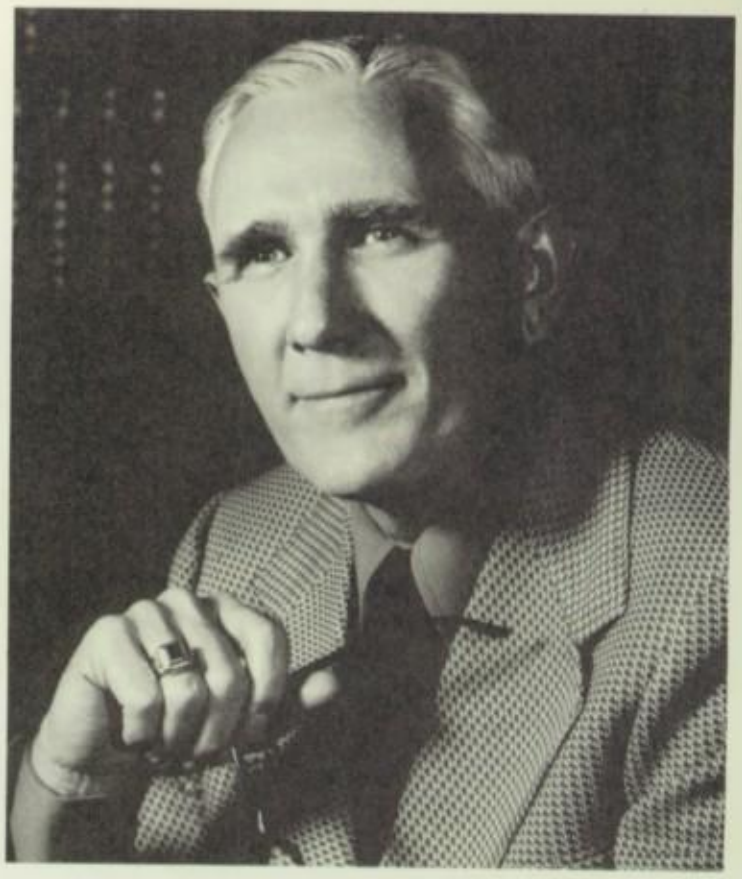
1977-Administration Has Many Decisions To Make



Two new members joined the all-important District 214 School Board this year. They are Ms. Marilyn Quinn and Dr. John Gmitro. Little did they know of the decisions they would assist in making in 1977. One memorable incident happened in early February--those cold temperatures found us desperately conserving our oil supply and adjusting to turned-down thermostats; but, the Administration pulled us through for another year by encouraging us to don sweaters, dial down, and grin and bear it. Then Spring and new challenges and decisions for the busy School Board to make to keep things running smooth.

(Right) Dr. Gilbert - Superintendent of District 214 (Center) First row: Ms. Marilyn Quinn, Mr. Donald Hoeck, Mr. Richard Bachhuber; Second row: Dr. John Gmitro, Mr. Arthur Aronson, Mr. Gene Artemenko, Mr. Jack Costello, Dr. Gilbert (Superintendent). (Bottom) Dr. McClennan - Assistant Superintendent of District 214

A.H.S. Administration Has Another Really Active Year

.....and a cast of thousands

They say a picture is worth a thousand words. The editors of this yearbook are girls, so following tradition, in addition to the pictures, we've decided to add a few more words. This book is dedicated to the free spirit in everyone; to you the students of Arlington. May your days be filled with joy and happiness and Big Macs and Whoppers.

Friendships are like flowers. We cannot promise you a rose garden, but we hope your relationships develop and blossom with all the beauty of a rose. Many of the names have been changed to protect the innocent!

Jeff,

I U T

We just had to be in her class to believe it. It's still hard to believe it. It's somewhat of a little list owe did to offset her in class so you don't forget (I know I won't) but, trying to find my chain but finding cuan (instead, we ... wish I could see ... Everyone stay ed away from us the rest of the year, making funny cracks about her (it wasn't hard to) Going to the Museum for a spending the whole day with a liverwurst taste in my mouth (that's your fault you know), And last but not least, thank the biggest joke in our class (her)

P.S. You better write and good luck with the chicks in Calif. I can't say it hasn't been fun (well) ... I can't say it hasn't been ... I'm transferring (2) but-) to San Diego after Harper. Forever yours Rich (w) Wuebker

Thanx for everything

P.S. You better write me or else

Care too because two were really ... say "hot to trot"

Bye

Jeff. I don't want to say anything that has already been said on the phone. I hope that you have a lot of fun in California! You probably will do great in everything you aim for! You're a great friend and companion. I hope to God you write me. You better or I'll do something drastic! Hope to see you again sometime.

Love,
Janet

P.S. Bon Voyage!

P.SS. Those are suppose to be tears!

In Defense of Quiet People

I wish
I knew why
everyone makes such a fuss over quiet people.
"Why are you so quiet?"
they ask (in between everything else).
I wish
they'd realize that a quiet person is usually busy
doing one of two things.
Either
that quiet person is thinking
some far away thoughts, or
that quiet person
is listening.

The Yawn

A straight somber slash slowly parting over two ivory ridges;
The shallow opening, rumbling wider and wider, expressionless in itself,
Its appearance quite outrageous,
  yet often contagious,
As the gaping hole
  becomes a bottomless pit
And I swallow my quiet boredom with a yawn.

Grandpa

Whittling and chewing peerless tobacco,
Rocking on the porch or sitting at the picnic table,
He enjoys the trees and listens to the birds.

"Grandpa, what are acorns for?"
His grin illuminates the day.
From his lips rolls his reply implanted in a story.

"Grandpa, I've got a hurt."
A hand reaches out to cure the scrape.
"Krynepyster, krynepyster, krynepyster, stup!"
The pain vanishes.

Rocking and whittling,
Singing that song Grandma hated-
"I picked a lemon where they say only peaches grow," Grandpa works his magic.

San Juan Capistrano Mission

Bald in one's self
Ancient arcs sit silent.
Christians stir in loose robes,
Ghosts in the church rooms.

Oaken trees large in age,
I stir passing their shade.
Full flowers survive.

The Centre, laden with pond is as a tiny village square;
the middle of town.

I move through narrow brickways,
high walls on either side of me.
There are open areas lined with arcs.
We pass through their bedrooms, kitchen and church,
small with low doorways.

I reach for a ghost rosary.
I wish for a robe.
I imagine fellow priests sitting this 18th century.

Dreaming on tour,
my figure passes beckoning entrances.
I think of the past,
and long to know these paths.

Crispy, Clean Grandma

Grandma Deming smells
Of mothballs and violet talc.
Oh, how I love to hug her-
All clean and crispy ironed,
Cotton flowered
With those pretty, porcelain, rosebud
Earrings.

Her wispy, white hair
Always tousled-
Confused by a breeze,
Her laughing, gray eyes
Underlined and punctuated
By happy wrinkles.

I kiss her soft cheek,
Hold her weathered hand
Marked and worn from hard work.
I confide in her bits
Of my happy life
And watch her beam.
She tells me I'm her reason
For living-
Then she is mine.

Praise

This church I've grown up with;
Its red brick walls a mighty shield
Against the cold harsh gusts
Of loneliness outside;
The choir's ringing chords
Meshing like intricately woven cloth;
And organ pipes stacked high above
Watching us with gleaming silver eyes;
The strong stature of the podium
Supporting an overpowering flow
Of words surging from the minister's mouth;
Warm red hymn books opening their Leaves of melody like welcoming hands
To a friend;
And soaring prayers in flight to God.

Nancy Lehman '78

Constant Reminder

Do I think of you?
Not much.
Only when I hear James Taylor sing,
Or when a dark blue coupe passes by,
Or when the snap of a Michelob can explodes,
And sets free its golden captive.
Funny it happens everyday.

And whenever I see a blue coupe,
I always hope that it's you
And you'll stop,
Instead of racing off,
Leaving me in a cloud of dust
Which time can't seem to vacuum up.

You wrote it boldly

You labeled my work average.

But average what?

Time, effort, talent?

Certainly not tears.

I got an A today,

but you wrote it

so lightly I wasn't sure

I'd even gotten a grade.

Is it so hard to write

"superior, well done, I'm pleased?"

My whole day is made

I go home to announce my success and my mother asks,

"What's your next assignment?"

Again I struggle not to blur

the writing with my tears.

The Lecture

The teacher continued his lecture
Accompanied by the tap, tap, tap
Of a pencil gently drumming a desk.
A girl in the back row yawned,
Stretching as if to shake off sleep.
The air was heavy and stagnant,
As still as a dead pond.
The teacher's voice droned out
In a steady, monotonous tone,
Softly lulling the students.
Their gaze was lowered,
And they stared at soft swirls of white
That lay imbedded in cool brown linoleum.
They sat slumped in their chairs,
As if their strings had been cut,
Painted expressions frozen in place.

Of Winter

For cold wind whips through empty branches

Of trees, whose foliage was once dense and green,

And clouds shroud the pale, waxy half-circlet which illuminates

Sky, eerie, glowing.

Bits of rotting wood dotted with skeletons of abundant moss

Lie about, covered with crisp, white snow.

Farther back, hidden by dried, brown leaves

Stiff, its blood frozen in its veins,

Feathers loose, head twisted grotesquely,

The bird's eyes are open to the world,

Forever.

The Creation Of A World

None of us ever knew how the girl, the one with only Arms and a head
could ever bend her body.
It did seem somewhat flimsy though,
as we would always notice, cause her ma would always sit her in the hallway with the front door left wide open.

Only thing she ever did was twirl that big old red ball between her fingers, round and round and round.

Guess that's all she could do.

Never could sit outside on the front porch even to watch the world just for a little while.
Guess it didn't matter to her anyway.

But then I guess it did, for it wasn't but a few days after when I was sitting, not playing with the kids, but watching her.

Her momma musta been in the kitchen otherwise she'd never permit but the girl grabbed hold of the hall banister and with all her power tried to pull herself up.

Her body looked all rigid as I watched.
Her legs didn't seem able to bend anymore.
Drips of hope rolled about her face.
It musta been an hour before she stood up straight and leaned on the wall.
Her mouth just hung open letting out heavy breaths.

Then very stifly, and with what seemed a great deal of trouble
she nudged the big old red ball which rolled the few feet across the front porch, then entering the world
bounced down a flight of maybe six or seven stairs.

For a Friend

You blossomed out of your tiny cocoon,
To fly gently,
Fluttering gossamer wings
Against the forceful air,
Softly alighting on a buttercup;
But in discontentment,
Soon flitting onward
To a bud
Seemingly more fruitful.

I take pity
On the boy
Whose net traps you unaware
And tries to pin you down,
For your fragile movements,
Stopped
And labeled under collector's glass,
Soon lose all fascination.

Ruth Kjerland '77

I stare at you.
You are made of brown and beige blahs.
The paper drops; a stranger's eyes look at me, questioning my gaze.
My eyes drop to the book upon my lap.
Those eyes belong to someone I loved.

Once, it seems long ago, we walked down the streets looking at the things we couldn't afford, dreaming of the day when they would be ours.
Now they are.

Our rural home is filled with leather chairs and crystal chandeliers.
But our dreams are separate,
Yours for peace and quiet, mine for the hard times when our love blocked out all of the things we couldn't afford.
Now the only thing we can't afford is love.

Seasons

The leaves turn brown, Curling slowly
against the chill November winds.
Rakes pull them into uniform piles to be scattered by flying bodies.

The snow falls heavily;
crushing plants struggling to survive.
Children out under parents' orders shovel away their playtime.

The sky fills, blue and clear,
open to clouds that casually float by.
Flowers struggle to push aside the earth encasing them.
The grass grows abundantly only to be given a crew cut as soon as the little ones can start the lawn mower.

The General

He entered the room, straight and sturdy,
olive green from head to foot,
his buttons adorned with eagles,
stars upon his shoulders.
His silver rimmed glasses clashed with the dazzling array of gold.

What happened to the man
I had talked to this morning?
We had laughed about driving tanks.
We had a hill all picked out.
A telephone pole was entrenched there;
this, one day we would conquer.
Did he still exist inside of that stiff,
strict uniform?

Later he ran down the stairs in a pair of plaid bermuda shorts and an old ragged shirt, singing a nonsense
rhyme,
the one we had made up when I was three.
He entered the kitchen with a sly smile;
a pair of sandals upon his feet.
I couldn't help but laugh when I saw his skinny bird-like legs.
He looked at me sternly, but a smile threatened.
My father was back from playing the world of soldiers.

Homecoming - Catch It When It Dies (With apologies to J. D. Salinger)

I will never know how they ever came up with such a ridiculous ceremony as Homecoming. I mean, it's so phony and all. The whole idea behind Homecoming is for everyone to get involved in the festivities and have a lot of fun and all. If you really want to know the truth, though, I think the exact opposite transpires.

First of all, it is customary for each of the four graduating classes in the lousy school to build a float for the crummy Homecoming parade. a float, for Chrissake! Do you know how many napkins have to be folded to build a goddam float? A helluva lot, I'll tell you that much. I mean building a float is a royal pain in the butt. It really is. I'm not kidding.

Anyway, after all the stupid floats have been assembled, each class gets to enter their float in the Homecoming parade. Do you know what happens then? Why, the phonies in the insensate administration actually have the gall to award a first place prize for the best float. A prize, for Chrissake! How the hell the crummy administrators can evaluate a goddam conglomerate of napkins is beyond my ken. That kills me. It really does.

Another one of the festivities of Homecoming is electing the Homecoming King and Queen. It's really just a crummy popularity contest to see who has the most friends. During one of the days of Homecoming week, all the candidates for King and Queen are presented in an assembly. All of the girl candidates are wearing dresses and white gloves and all, and it really makes you wanna puke. The boy candidates wear these crummy suits, and all the teachers say that they're sharp-looking. Sharp-looking! That kills me.

After that's all over, us lousy students get to vote for the two that we want. When the votes have all been tabulated, just prior to the Homecoming parade, the King and Queen are announced during coronation. These five voluptuous girls and five handsome guys are all standing in a big circle, waiting to see if they are going to be the King or Queen. First they announce who the Queen is, and she just stands there with a beatific smile on her face while all of the other girls are dolorous and crying because they didn't win and all. That depresses the hell out of me. These girls are standing there crying in front of the whole student body, and nobody gives a damn. They announce who the King is right after that, and the four phonies that didn't win act like they're very happy for him or something, shaking his hand and all, when they really wish the bastard would drop dead in his tracks. Then the King and Queen walk around the gymnasium, where all this is taking place, and everybody sits there and claps.

Like I said before, whoever came up with the idea of Homecoming must have been off his rocker. The only thing that the phonies ever care about is that the prettiest girl and the most popular guy get to be king and Queen. I'll tell you boy, I'll be glad as hell when I get out of this place. Every time I think about festivities like these, I get all depressed. Things get more depressing every year.

Unlocked Past

The recently unlocked room smelled gray and musty.
    The draft from the open door
    jarred layers of dust
    from the furniture.
Boards creaked
under the weight of human footsteps, piercing the silence of the house.
The once shining brass bed-post
now appeared tarnished and dull.
    Echoes of silent voices wavered
    in the distortion of the mirrors.
Lost memories
paced the threadbare, moth eaten carpet, where spiders
    now spun
    their silky webs.
The warmth of love had gone; empty walls shivered in despair.

Grade School Cop

My father was a cop - and still is, but I think he regretted it when I was in grade school He and my mom were constantly getting notes from my teachers, which were prominently pinned to my shirt collar. Not that these notes weren't justified — they were.

The first note occurred when dad was working on the narco squad. One afternoon at recess, I decided my fellow first-graders were pedaling "the stuff" when they ran around behind the building. I made them all "spread 'em" along the side of the school and read them their rights. It turned out they were holding a secret club meeting for improvement of the playground.

A couple weeks later, I thought I'd help out my school, so I spent my lunch hour ticketing all bicycles without reflectors and bells. When my best friend found a ticket on his bike, he punched me in the nose, forcing me to make a citizen's arrest. He wouldn't come quietly, Leaving me no choice but to "cuff him" to the oak tree while I went for help. My teacher was furious, especially since I lost the key to the handcuff, and we had to let the janitor saw off the tree branch.

This is a poem for a magazine . . .
or a thick covered memory for all those who did the same thing
. . . the same year.

To those who reign over us from tradition,
who sit contemplating in coffee steam and silence,
I suggest hail to things new to grow;
not to elms really so sore to our eyes that we are not even irritated any longer.
Not to things only beautiful afterwards because that is how you learned it.
Not to things gathered here because of simplicity and understanding.
Look today at today.
Yesterday is much too late;
who is back home on the farm?
Things that grow begin young-understand this meaning.
Kids are the success of the future,
but cannot begin with a 500 page novel.
There are people much more powerful than English Department heads, though the chance begins with those old elms.
Stubborn you fat, fat ladies open up and think about kids.
For what you really want can never be . . .

THE BEACH

The waves come up,

Pulling at the sand and stones.

Forcing them back to the depth

Of the lake:

They fight the waves,

For they love the new found sun.

They float back on the undertow,

Just to hitch a ride

On the next wave

To the shore.

As I stand

On the beach,

The waves pull at my feet,

For I'm covering stones

With them

That the waves want.

The waves pull the stones

Right from under my feet,

Causing my feet to sink in the sand.

I turn to walk away,

For I can't take

Watching the endless fight,

That neither will win.

STUDY HALL

Our thoughts and words dangle over our heads like mobiles; they twist and change softly as our dazed eyes act as projectors. The rain drizzles down the windows and there is a hush over the room on this rainy Monday morning.

While a girl asks the boy next to her what classes he's taking next year, above her head they're at her locker, talking and laughing; above his head they're at her locker fumbling, groping for words. Over a large boy hovers a pizza, slowly being devoured as the boy's eyes widen. While a thin beautiful girl with curly hair walks over the head of a chubby girl with curly hair, above a quiet boy with glasses, an outgoing boy with glasses tells a joke which sends everyone laughing. A boy's face flashes on and off, while underneath it a girl sits reading a dog-eared letter.

Numbers jump and fly, reassembling themselves digitally, as pencils scratch and pages of algebra books turn. Ancient cultures and Neanderthal men turn alive and tongues roll off French, German and Spanish.

Book characters act out their story again. Scarlett slaps Rhett in one corner of the room, and Scrooge flits over a village with the "Ghost of Christmas Past" in another. George turns from Lennie in disgust and anger; a small black boy bends down, sweating, in a field of cotton; and other nondescript characters revolve around each other, sometimes repeating their appearances.

A freshman with dreamy eyes turns to the window, watching the rain, as a ship above him rocks and falls on the high seas. As hard rock blares, Montrose plays in the middle of the room, the blinding lights blending into the ceiling. The crowds scream and rock, as the stage wobbles and wild colors flash. Visions and people dodge in and out, disappearing and appearing again as kids dream of . . . . .

With a blare the bell rings and the pictures evaporate, as the students file out, leaving the room empty, and the rain comes down.

Kelly's Excuses

First Day:

The tall, lanky figure casually strolled through the door, his careless grin and flippant gestures showing nonchalance.

"You're late, Mr. Kelly," the teacher stated.

"Yeah," he acknowledged, stumbling into his chair.

"Do you have an excuse?"

"Well, you see, it's a long story," he said as he settled back in his desk and crossed his spider-like legs. The teacher looked at him expectantly. "Our car broke down, so I had to walk to school. I was about half a mile away, when I found a baby robin who had broken its wing. So, I put it in my coat pocket. I got to school and decided to put the bird in a safe place outside.

"I took it out of my pocket . . . ." he paused dramatically, "and it was dead. So, I took it out to the football field, found a stick and dug a hole, placed the baby bird inside, covered it with grass, and hummed taps on my way to your class."

"See that you're on time from now on."

Second Day:

The same tall, lanky boy strode into the classroom, grinning.

"You're late, again, Mr. Kelly," the teacher said with annoyance. "Do you have a reasonable excuse?"

"Well," he said as he made himself comfortable, "last night, I had a dream about summer vacation. I woke up with the sun lazing in my eyes, so I hopped out of bed, put on my cut-offs and a T-shirt, jumped in my car, which is now working," he assured us, "and headed for Lake Geneva.

"I was only three blocks from my house when the tire blew. In order to get home for my spare, I had to walk past school, and I noticed all my friends' cars in the parking lot!

"I knew I'd have to find something to wear and get to class, and I remembered I'd left a pair of jeans in Bill's car from last Saturday night. (Giggles spread like an epidemic) So, I hopped into Bill's car, and as I was pulling off my cut-offs, Tom Kopp whipped open the door and arrested me for indecent exposure. He let me go after I explained the situation, so, here I am."

"Well, I think you should come in tomorrow morning for a detention," the teacher said kindly, but firmly.

Third Day:

An unfamiliarly groggy body tromped into class, and tumbled in his desk.

"Mr. Kelly," the teacher said, "not only did you miss your detention for this morning, but you're late to class. Did your car 'break down' again?"

Two glassy eyes and a pale, limp face looked up to the teacher. His mouth slurred his excuse. "Well, uh, my little brother 'loaded' my cigarette, and, uh, when I lit up, it exploded. I, uh, guess I went into shock. I stopped my car, and, uh, just sat in the middle, uh, of North West, uh, Highway.

"Then, uh, all I could hear were, uh, blaring noises. I'm not sure, uh, what they were. Man, I still feel so fuzzy. Uh, I guess that's when, uh, the paramedics came. They, uh, tried to stick me with this mother needle!" he cried as he spread his hands a foot to show the length. His eyes dropped and his mouth sagged as he continued. "I, uh, said I was, uh, okay, and that I, uh, wanted to go to school. A cop, uh, started saying I, uh, had to go to the, uh, hospital, but uh, the paramedics said I didn't, so, uh, here I am." His head banged on his desk with a thump.

"He should get an academy award for that one!" shouted someone. The class broke up in appreciative laughter.

The following day, he arrived at school at seven-thirty, despite his little sister's attempt to make him late by setting back the alarm clock. Then, the car refused to start, so he ran the two miles so he wouldn't be late for his detention.

He sat outside room 110 until eight-fifteen. There was no one in the school, yet. At nine-forty, Clarence, a custodian, came by.

"Hey! Whatcha' doin' here on a day like this?" Clarence asked.

"Got a detention."

"Not today, you don't," Clarence laughed, grabbing his stomach he was laughing so hard. "There's no school today!"

Jeff,
This has been quit a year. I'm so honored to have met you. You are really a nice friend. You are so kind, and you're a nice gentleman. I shall always remember you - and your hair. We did have fun 6th hour, it's just too bad I had to leave. We had fun. I hope you have the best of everything in all you do. And please stay the same, and don't judge people just for their beliefs. Success, Happiness always Love, your friend,
Marilyn

"King Pith"

Jeff,
I'm sorry I upset you but I would like to say one more thing. Thank you very much for protecting me from all the "big bad wolfs" in 6th hour lunch. Be proud because you are a King (Pith) Don't ever forget it. Forgive ME. Again Thanks for being a friend
Love Marilyn

Jeff,
Too bad your a senior because you could go to the turnabout and Prom all over again with Janet. Not that I'm jealous but you know. Have a great summer and have fun in college. Love

Jeff.

Sorry I didn't get to know you better. I really wish I did. Have fun in California and I sure wish you weren't moving.

Don't forget to bring all of your F.A.P. films. (especially the great one with the pair of tits flashing) Don't forget to send me a postcard.

Karen Theis

Jeff- Do you get high? I didn't know. Come over sometime before you take off and make me some Kool-Aid (not) Party a little (not) Stay Cool-y Curley Love Kathy Trachy

All of my mail & messages will be forwarded to my parents address: 13 Pinehurst dr. Oak Hill Estates Marquette, Mich. 49855.

Jeff- Throttling like being possessed is about your book you could have written larger THIS IS MINE

But it isn't, because I'm writing it, I promise not to tease you about your hair any more- it is kind of distinguishing though + helps one spot you rather quickly And I guess your touch isn't all that much of a terror though it is rather frightening! Now that I am making no sense at all which is to be expected. Good luck in that god forsaken territory you're moving to! Take care + stay cool
